Adding Related Events to Research Areas

Complexity Level: Beginner

The is a beginner topic. You will need to possess some basic understanding and have some experience with Drupal content editing.

Permission Level
Level 2 or Higher - See permission level document for details

Overview
This document shows you how to add Related Events to research pages.

Table of Contents
- Step 1: Create an Event
- Step 2: Edit the Content
- Step 3: Add Research Area(s)
- Step 4: View Research Areas
- Step 5: View Related Events
- Adding Related Articles:

Step 1: Create an Event
Click on 'Content'

Click on 'Add Content'

Click on 'Event'

Add content

Form + Site
- Article
  - Use article for blog-style content like news, press releases or blog posts.
- Course
  - Course allows students to get a general idea of what kind of courses your department offers. They don't usually include specific course sections.
- Course Schedule
  - Upload a file that serves as the department's section course schedule for a given semester.
- Event
  - Used to create events for many uses, such as seminars, conferences, film screenings and more.

Step 2: Edit the Content
Fill in the details for your event.
Step 3: Add Research Area(s)

Start typing in the Research Areas box and it will show you options to choose. You can click on 'Add another item' to add as many as you need.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Research Area</th>
<th>Show row width</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Environmental/Atmosphere Chemistry (ACH)</td>
<td>Add another item</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Click on 'Save'

Step 4: View Research Areas

Click on the link below Research Areas to view events by a particular research area.
Step 5: View Related Events

The related events will now display on the research area(s) you have selected.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>RELATED EVENTS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Test Event</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thursday, September 23, 2023 – 1:30pm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chemistry Building, Room 420</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Adding Related Articles:

Here are instructions on how to add Related Articles to your research pages.